BULLETIN NO. 20-22

December 2020

SPECIAL EDITION

NHTSA Odometer Exemption Change Effective January 1, 2021

As you are aware, the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration (NHTSA) allows vehicles that are 10 years or older to be exempted from odometer disclosure requirements. On October 2, 2019, NHTSA issued a final rule amending 49 CFR part 580.17. NHTSA's final ruling amended the 10-year odometer disclosure exemption requirement to a 20-year odometer disclosure exemption. The original final rule included a 2020 implementation deadline, however, NHTSA adjusted that date to January 1, 2021.

The change to the exemption from the odometer disclosure requirements will take effect on January 1, 2021, and will apply to model year 2011 and newer vehicles. Beginning with the 2011 model year, and every year thereafter, states are obligated to capture odometer disclosures for these vehicles for 20 years. As of the effective date, model year 2011 vehicles will not be exempt from capturing the odometer reading until January 1, 2031.

Please see the attached "Odometer Exemption Applicability to Model Year Vehicles" table by the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators (AAMVA). The table provides a visual example of how the new rule applies to each model year vehicle.

Pennsylvania has learned a few jurisdictions will not be ready to implement NHTSA's final rule by the effective date. As of the effective date, any vehicles (2011 model year or newer) titled in a non-ready state and branded exempt, if transferred into PA will have its odometer reading recorded on the PA title as "not actual mileage."

When agents see any vehicle (2011 model year or newer) with an out-of-state title that already has an exempt brand and are transferring the title into a Pennsylvania Certificate of Title, as of the effective date, agents are required to record the vehicle's odometer reading on the PA record and apply the odometer status code as "2 - not actual mileage."

Vehicles model year 2010 and older will continue to have the option to be exempt from the odometer disclosure after January 1, 2021.

Taken from “AAMVA’s Odometer Rule Disclosure Exemption Change Whitepaper,” below is a visual example of the application of NHSTA’s Final Rule Odometer Exemption.
